- Cincinnati Public schools collaborated with the community to ensure meals were available to students 7-days a week

SY 2020-2021: Cincinnati Public Schools began the school year in a blended learning model where students could attend school virtually or hybrid. The district used social media, robo calls and email blasts to inform the community of remote meal distribution times, pop up food trucks and take home remote meal packs for students attending hybrid instruction.

Hybrid Instruction: In order to keep students safe on campus, school nutrition moved from meal service in the cafeteria to meals in the classroom. Mobile kiosks were used to deliver meals to each classroom throughout the district, where cafeteria staff and teachers distributed meals to students. Cafeteria staff also prepared meal packs for students to take home for virtual learning days and weekends. Community partners donated durable, reusable bags for students to carry meals home.

Virtual Instruction: Students attending virtual school received 7-day meal packs that were distributed at remote meal hubs every Wednesday. To better serve working parents, remote pickup was available between 7 am and 5 pm every Wednesday. To accommodate families without transportation, pop up food trucks staffed by the school nutrition drivers, delivered meals making 45 minute stops at 10 sites across Cincinnati to distribute the 7-day meal packs every Wednesday.

Resources: Staff throughout the district and community partners provided support to the school nutrition department. Kroger and the Cincinnati Reds provided the reusable bags for students to take home. In addition to the remote meal packs, the school nutrition department received produce boxes from USDA to distribute to families. Equipment grants were used to obtain meal kiosks, bins, coolers, carts, and bagging stands.

Cincinnati Public schools served 3,944,147 meals to students remotely and on campus, 7-days a week from June through December 2020. An outstanding effort was put forth by the district and community to ensure the health and well-being of all students throughout the pandemic.
